The modern English alphabet is a Latin alphabet consisting of 26 letters, each having an upper and a lower case. It originated around the 7th century from the Latin script. Since then, letters have been added or removed until the current Modern English alphabet of 26 letters was formed (eventually becoming the ISO basic Latin alphabet). The word alphabet is a compound of the first two letters of

An alphabet is a standardized set of basic written symbols or graphemes (called letters) that represent the phonemes of certain spoken languages. Not all writing systems represent language in this way; in a syllabary, each character represents a syllable, for instance, and logographic systems use characters to represent words, morphemes, or other semantic units.
