Winter's metaphors often include its stillness, its sense of silence and darkness, a season of hibernation, a season where everything dies a little. The falling snow is a "poem of the air," wrote Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, where the "troubled sky reveals the grief it feels." John Updike noted winter's lack of sunlight, writing in "January":

Poems for Winter | Academy of American Poets

And Winter's dregs made desolate
The weakening eye of day.
The tangled bine-stems scored the sky
Like strings of broken lyres, ...
Do not go gentle
into that good night.
Grave men, near death,
who see with blinding sight Blind eyes could blaze like meteors and be gay, Rage, rage against the dying of the light. ...
